

TEMPLE
UNIVERSITY

Insurance Education Institution

Department of Risk, Insurance and Healthcare Management

“This is a great way for students to learn about insurance”

The Insurance Education Institutes are designed for teachers, junior high through high school, who will integrate insurance into their financial literacy curriculum or another subject such as business, consumer education, economics, social science, family and consumer science, mathematics, or driver's education.

Benefits

- 3 free ACT 48 hours that can count toward continuing education
- Increased knowledge of risk management and insurance
- Classroom materials including a teaching kit, textbook, DVDs, and lesson plans
- Improved skills in reading and interpreting insurance policies
- An understanding of career opportunities for students in insurance
- Familiarity with financial services curriculum available for use in the classroom
- Proficiency in one of the five major financial literacy standards

Temple University, Department of Risk, Insurance and Healthcare Management is a preferred institute! The program will run July 25-27, 2011.

Click Here for more information or e-mail michael.mccloskey@temple.edu